

Naval Collar © Canadian War Museum

Naval Collar

The naval collar was an iconic part of a Canadian sailor's uniform during the Second World War. It was worn over a shirt and a top called a jumper, and covered the sailor's shoulders. The collar was a traditional element but was not everyday wear for sailors at sea.

Original or reproduction